Bridgeway Appoints Rich Hall Vice President of eDiscovery Solutions

(January 7, 2008 -- Houston, TX) Bridgeway, the leading provider of technology solutions for in-house legal departments, announced that Rich Hall will serve as the company's vice president of eDiscovery.

"We are delighted to have Rich Hall aboard," said Keith Okano, president of Bridgeway. "Rich's background in electronic discovery makes him singularly qualified to lead this critical segment of our business."

Bridgeway is committed to providing the technology infrastructure for all legal business administration. In direct response to clients' needs, Bridgeway's integrated and comprehensive approach helps organizations meet complex legal, compliance and business challenges.

"I am very excited to join the Bridgeway team," Hall said. "Bridgeway has a rich history of combining technology solutions with outstanding service for corporate and government in-house legal departments."

Hall adds, "Electronic discovery is a very real issue with high risk and significant consequences. In this evolving marketplace, corporate legal departments want an eDiscovery partner they can trust. Bridgeway has supported corporate and government legal departments with high-quality products for more than 18 years. Our vision is to provide eDiscovery solutions, at a reasonable price, to help our clients address current and future needs."

Hall has more than 20 years experience as a senior business, operations and technology professional with technology, consulting, and energy companies. He has founded and served as an executive in software and consulting companies within the electronic discovery industry. Hall has direct experience with large, complex litigation and bankruptcy eDiscovery solutions, including those faced by Enron. Hall holds an undergraduate degree in Management Science from Georgia Institute of Technology and a MBA from the University of Houston.
